An Episode in Boerdom.

An Afrikaner, trekking from Schulz's Hootie to Palapa with a load of blitting, halted by a fontein at the foot of a kloof. A Voortrekker suddenly appeared from behind a kopje, waving a vliekleur.
"Gorlong," shouted the Voortrekker.
"Dop!" yelled the Afrikaner, who was a man of ready wit.
"Produce it," said the Voortrekker, "though I am no dopper."
The Afrikaner's voolopper, who was standing on the dieselboom munching mealies, jumped off and started on a run toward a krantz. In jumping a sluit his foot slipped on a klip and he fell into a donga. The other, after much dop, got into a heated argument in Taal over the quickest way to the nearest dorp. One said he should take the drift over the spruit and the other that he should pont over the pan. A zarp came along through the poort to the laager, where they should be safe from the rooineks.—New York Evening Sun.

Blow at Elevated Roads.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—The Appellate Court has rendered a unanimous opinion through Judge Adams that property owners along the line of the various elevated railroads in Chicago may sue for damages alleged to have been sustained by the depreciation of property values resulting from the construction and operation of the elevated systems. The decision has a direct bearing on suits against the elevated railroad companies in which the aggregate of damages sought runs into the millions.

STERNBERG ON PLAGUE

Surgeon General Gives Interesting Facts of History.

San and Sanitation the Active Agents in Stamping Out the Disease—United States Has No Fear—Ravages Made in Past Years.

Bubonic plague, the scourge whose ravages are traceable to centuries before the beginning of the Christian era, and which has a greater mortality record than all of the wars, was the subject of an interesting lecture by Surgeon General George M. Sternberg, delivered recently before the members of the National Geographical Society in Washington. Gen. Sternberg was introduced to the large audience by Alexander Graham Bell, president of the society.

The recent discovery of the disease on a vessel bringing to the United States a cargo of coffee, and its outbreak in Manila and Honolulu, gave added interest to the lecture. The lecture treated with the history and geographic distribution of the plague, and Gen. Sternberg touched briefly upon the spread of the dread disease in our new island possessions.

Recent scientific researches by eminent bacteriologists have disclosed the fact that the specific cause of the disease is a minute bacillus, and that by the use of antitoxin and strict sanitary measures the mortality which has always prevailed hitherto can be greatly reduced. Gen. Sternberg said he believes that even should an epidemic appear in the United States, which he regards as barely possible, it would be readily stamped out by the sanitary measures which would be enforced.

SUN FATAL TO GERMS.

The bacillus of bubonic plague, Gen. Sternberg explained, could easily be killed by a 2 per cent solution of carbolic acid, and that a few hours' exposure to the sun was equally effective. The sun, the lecturer declared, was considered by all bacteriologists to be the great germ destroyer.

Gen. Sternberg's lecture was illustrated by many interesting pictures thrown upon a screen by a stereopticon. Some of the views represented historic scenes when men were put to death by horrible torture because it was thought they caused the plague to appear among the people. Slides showing the bubonic bacillus were also displayed.

After briefly outlining the subject of his lecture, Gen. Sternberg said, in part:

"Although bubonic plague has never prevailed within the limits of the United States, its recent appearance in our island possessions in the Pacific has aroused great interest in the disease, and considerable apprehension as to its extension in the future. It has effected a lodgment in Portugal and in Brazil during the past year, and at least one vessel has arrived at the port of New York with cases of the disease on board from the last mentioned country. The question is, therefore, a very practical one as to whether there is any real danger of the introduction and extension of this pestilential malady of Eastern countries in our own territory.

OF ANCIENT ORIGIN.

"The history of bubonic plague extends back to a remote antiquity. Greek physicians of the second and third century before the Christian era have left a record of a pestilential malady which prevailed in Libya, in Egypt, and in Syria, and two Alexandrian physicians, Dioscorides and Poesidonios, who were contemporaries of Christ, have given a description of the disease which leaves no doubt as to its identity with the plague of more recent times. We now know that the germ of the disease is found not only in the supporting sores, but also in the blood of an infected individual.

"During the Middle Ages epidemics continued to occur, but the accounts of the nature of the prevailing 'pest' are usually confused and unsatisfactory, and it was not until nearly the middle of the fourteenth century that the horrible epidemic known as the Black Death devastated Europe and caused the death of more than 25,000,000 of its inhabitants. While bubonic plague has usually invaded Europe from Egypt, the Black Death is believed to have originated in Northern China. It is not known exactly when or where this epidemic had its origin, but it is known to have reached the Crimea in 1346 and Constantinople the following year. The same year it was conveyed by ships to several seaports of Italy, both on the Mediterranean and the Adriatic, and also to Marseilles, on the French coast.

In 1348 it had extended to the interior of these countries and to Spain; also to England, Holland and the Scandinavian peninsula. The following year it completed the invasion of Europe. DESCRIBED BY AN EARLY WRITER.

"The following graphic account of the ravages of this pestilence is by a writer of the period:

Wild places were sought for shelter; some went into ships and anchored themselves afar off on the waters. But the angel that was pouring the vial had a foot on the sea as well as on the dry land. No place was so wild that the plague did not visit—none so secret that the quick-sighted pestilence did not discover—none could fly that it did not overtake.

For a time all commerce was in coffins and shrouds, but even that ended. Shrill there was none; churches and chapels were open, but neither priests nor penitents entered—all went to the charnel house. The sexton and the physician were cast into the same deep and wide grave; the testator and his heirs and executors were hurled from the same cart into the same hole together. Fire became extinguished, as if its element had expired, and the seams of the sailless ships yawned to the sun. Though doors were open and coffers unwatched, there was no theft; all offenses ceased and no cry but the universal woe of the pestilence was heard among men.

"That the 'Black Death' of the fourteenth century was, in fact, the same disease which subsequently prevailed in Europe under the name of 'the plague,' and more recently known as 'bubonic plague,' can scarcely be doubted. But the epidemic was characterized by an unusually large number of cases of the pulmonary form of the disease, in which it seems probable that the lungs are the primary seat of infection, while in the bubonic form the bacillus effects a lodgment through some superficial wound or abrasion, or possibly through the bite of insects, and it first invades the lymphatics, producing inflammation of the nearest lymphatic glands."

Gen. Sternberg then gave an historical account of the prevalence of plague during the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

HARBOR EXTENSION BOARD

Composed of Sixth Artillery Officers and Now at Work.

No New Requisition for Land on Water Front
But Only a Request for Data—Warehouse in Contemplation.

No new requisition from either the Army or Navy has been made for harbor front property. The Hawaiian Government Survey has simply been asked to give the U. S. Army authorities here the "corners" of the lots mentioned in the Bulletin six or eight weeks ago as having been set apart by President McKinley for the use of the United States Government. These lots are along Fort, between Queen and Allen streets.

Colonel Ruhlen said this morning that the Army warehouse, mentioned incidentally in this paper in connection with the Oceanic wharf extension matter, had been contemplated for many months. At first it was designed to erect temporary warehouse accommodation on the barracks ground, but later it was thought best to have a permanent warehouse on Federal Government ground close to the harbor. This would be convenient both for receiving and shipping army stores and material. The matter has been submitted to the Department at Washington, where the decision now rested.

Section 2 of Special Orders, Department of California, under date of February 8, 1900, reads as follows:

Pursuant to instructions from the Headquarters of the Army, Adjutant General's Office, of the 31st ultimo, a board of officers to consist of Major William Ennis, 6th Artillery; Captain Adam Siaker, 6th Artillery; Second Lieutenant G. R. Hancock, 6th Artillery, is appointed to meet at Honolulu, H. I., as soon as practicable after the receipt of this order at that station, for the purpose of examining into and reporting upon the proposed extension and modification of the existing harbor lines at Honolulu, with a view to obtaining additional information upon which to base proper and intelligent action. The junior member of the board will act as recorder.

This board promptly obeying the order has been devoting afternoons generally to investigating the harbor conditions. Good progress has been made and the board may be expected to make an early report of recommendations to Washington.

WAILUKU WATER WORKS.

The tenders for excavating, filling, hauling and laying pipes for the Wailuku water works total up as follows: C. B. Wilson's, $5859.56; John F. Bowler's, $5903.40. There will be no award of contract at present, because the appropriation lapses at the end of this month.

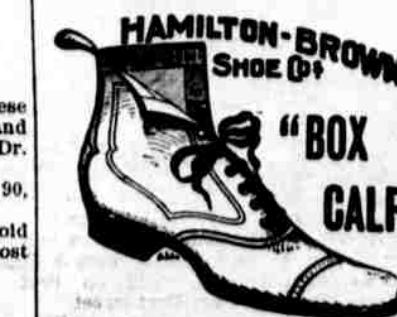

Tenders for the reservoir have not been completed for the totals, as data of measurement are not at hand.

Work of Japanese Ladies.

A temporary relief society of Japanese ladies organized at the first appearance of the plague, has received donations of $896. It has made and distributed a large amount of clothing and useful articles. Since the release of people from detention camps the society disbanded, turning over the balance of the fund to the Japanese Relief Society.
